

When working remotely, it is important that all employees continue to follow proper practices for the storage and disposal of records, particularly for paper records that contain confidential information, such as personal data or donation information.

When considering whether a record should be retained or destroyed, remember that