

Introduction

Colored pencils are a medium used by both artists and conservators, but their material properties have not been widely studied. The aim of this research was to identify the composition, solubility, and lightfastness of water-insoluble colored pencils. Both artist-grade and student-grade colored