

February 2021

Volume 7, Issue 1

RECRUITMENT AND RETENTION TRENDS IN THE ONTARIO RESERVE

Bibora Imre-Millei
CIDP Gender Lab

Insight into National Recruitment and Retention
Patterns

!

Preliminary Recommendations at the Unit Level

Directions for Future Academic Work

Editor of the CIDP Policy Brief Series: Thomas Hughes

ENDNOTES

¹ Office of the Auditor General of Canada. (2016). Report 5—Canadian Armed Forces Recruitment and Retention—National Defence; Office of the Auditor General of Canada. (2016). Report 5—Canadian Army Reserve—National Defence; Department of National Defence (2017). Strong, Secure, Engaged: Canada’s Defence Policy.

² Fuhr, S. (2019). IMPROVING DIVERSITY AND INCLUSION IN THE CANADIAN ARMED FORCES. Report of the Standing Committee on National Defence; Strong, Secure, Engaged. (2017).

³ MacKenzie, Rob Roy and Howard G. Coombs. “Canadian Armed Forces: A New Vision for the Reserves.” 20 no. 3 (2020): 6-15.

⁴ Riedel, Wolfgang W. “The Canadian Army Needs a Paradigm Shift.” 20 no. 2 (2020): 19-34

⁵ Howard G. Coombs, “Letter to the Editor.” 20 no. 3 (2020): 4-5.

⁶ Doran, Dan A. “Sacrificing Culture in the Name of Strategy: Why Militia Armouries Matter.” 20 no. 4 (2020): 66-70.

⁷ Earncliffe Strategy Group. (2018). Views of the Canadian Armed Forces 2018 Tracking Study.” Prepared for National Defence; Fuhr, S. (2019); The Director General Military Personnel Research (2019). Canadian Armed Forces Prospect Survey. Defence Research and Development Canada.

⁸ Office of the Auditor General of Canada, “Report 5—Canadian Army Reserve—National Defence” (2016). https://www.oag-bvg.gc.ca/internet/English/parl_oag_201602_05_e_41249.html.

⁹ Burczykca, M. (2019). Sexual misconduct in the Canadian Armed Forces Primary Reserve, 2018. Statistics Canada, Summary Report.