PART A

Part A: Objectives—Overview and Rationale of the Program

The MA Program in Gender Studies will emphasize the ways in which women, gender and politics are informed by questions of racism, colonialism, and globalization. Key areas will focus on the intersections of:

- gender, sexualities and feminist politics

- labour, class, and location
- cultural representation.

The program will be both cutting-edge and attendant to the traditional scholarly strengths of gender studies and women's studies. It will encourage interdisciplinarity, and support new ways of looking at issues of sex/gender. The dynamic and diverse nature of our program suits the social, cultural and educational needs of highly mobile local/global
