

Senate Committee on Non-Academic Discipline

Annual Report to Senate 2009-2010¹

Introduction

It is the role of the Senate Committee on Non-Academic Discipline (SONAD) to monitor the various groups involved in non-academic discipline activities. Through consultation with, and receipt of reports from, these groups or individuals, SONAD reviews non-academic procedures and disciplinary activity in an effort to ensure that these systems are fair and effective. SONAD's general mandate is to review and recommend changes to non-academic discipline policies currently in place at the University. SONAD met five that all references to academic dishonesty in the relevant sections were eliminated and replaced with terminology consistent with academic integrity.

Athletics and Recreation Non-Academic Discipline and Appeal Policy

SONAD approved the Athletics and Recreation Non-Academic Discipline and Appeal Policy. This document was revised to bring clarity, transparency and a uniform manner of proceeding to the non-academic discipline and appeals process in Athletics and Recreation. As well, the policy was intended to fit more appropriately within the new organizational structure of Athletics and Recreation and to be consistent with the University policy on Non-Academic Discipline at Queen's. As part of this policy, the Director of Athletics and Recreation will submit an annual report on disciplinary cases to SONAD.
